RAISE DISAPPOINTS LOCAL RAIL MEN

General Dissatisfaction Is Noted Among 800 Workers in Janesville.

Dissatisfaction over the wage award announced yesterday by the United States Labor board appeared to be general among Janesville railroad men today. The city's railway population is estimated at approximately 800, with the Milwaukee and Northwestern systems. It is estimated that this number will benefit to the extent of $200,000 annually under the present award.

Pending official announcement from the executives of the 16 principal crafts involved, the railroad men here, in general, are reticent and reserved.

Unskilled Labor Satisfied?

It is noticeable in those divisions at present declared to be receiving compensation commensurate with labor performed that individuals are not in discord with the award. On the other hand other crafts debate what their union executives will do, extending the belief in guarded ways that their increase is not parallel to risk and labor involved.

The union council will either vote to accept or reject the award. It is in session at Chicago.

Plan National Referendum. Its action will then be submitted to the entire union membership for ratification in a nation-wide referendum. This plebiscite will require at least one month.

There is no menace of an immediate railroad strike, it was declared in view of the long period necessary for the referendum, even should the executives at Chicago refuse the award and the vote of the union men back them in their stand.

FOUR TOWNS TO BE VISITED ON FIRST C. C. BOOSTER TOUR

Evidence that different communities of Rock county are looking forward in anticipation of a big day in Janesville next Wednesday, July 22, was the Chamber of Commerce picnic at Riverside park, was demonstrated today when a committee of four men called the Chamber of Commerce and let it be known that the folks up there want to be visited by one of the booster runs, the first of which starts Thursday night.

Arrangements were made today to stop at Fulton Thursday night. A big lawn social is planned there for that night.

Two district school meetings were held today at Fulton and Beloit, which is probably at present the most agitated subject of rural districts.

Residents of the town board, and town clerk of Fulton met Monday afternoon at the school house of district No. 9 to discuss the advisability of consolidating districts 5 and 9. No decision was reached and the meeting was adjourned until August 2, when action will probably be taken.

SANITATION URGED ON ALL GROCERIES

City's New Inspector Finds Many of Health Laws Disregarded.

General unsanitary conditions were found in practically every grocery store visited this morning by Dr. L. Woodworth, the city's new sanitary inspector.

"All need extensive use of scouring powder, soap and paint and in many there are conditions which are almost unimaginable," he said.

This afternoon the cafes and restaurants were to be inspected.

Dirty floors, inadequately screened foods and the presence of decayed vegetable accumulations both inside and at the rear formed the majority of cases listed when Dr. Woodworth conferred with City Health Officer Dr. Fred B. Welch at 10 o'clock this morning.

The sanitary inspector planned to meet Fire Chief Murphy to report a number of fire hazards discovered.

City Should Back Plan

J. L. Fisher, secretary of the Rock County Live Stock Breeders' association, went over the requirements of the breeders stating that the rail-road facilities of Janesville are such that this city is the logical place for the pavilion. While a pavilion could be erected at the fair grounds at from $5,000 to $10,000, he pointed out that location is undesirable because of the absence of switching facilities.

In a general discussion of the project, it was felt that as much money could be raised here in the county for such an institution. Mr. Inman said that he believed therefore that the Chamber of Commerce was the logical head of the cooperative movement, citing the success of a campaign for a pavilion conducted at Norton, Ill.

STATE MAN PROBES CHEESE SITUATION

Seriousness of Transportation State Prompts Markets Division To Act.

With the arrival in Monroe of L. G. Foster, assistant director of the bureau of markets, to investigate reports that the cheese industry in Wisconsin is in a precarious condition because of the lack of transportation facilities, the seriousness of the situation first reported to the public by the Gazette, is now being realized.

However, while the matter has been brought to the attention of railroad officials through the Rock county farm bureau, no cars have yet been provided to move the product.

The local market at Janesville has not yet been affected. June cheese can still be bought from the whole salers, grocers here report. Prices, however, have taken a slight jump.

Until the end of last week, the farmers continued to take their milk to the cheese factories. Some of the factories have been closed where a few supplies have been left and the farmers are scrambling to dispose of their milk at confectioneries. Where there is a few instances, cannot be taken.

Every effort is being made by the cheese factories to provide storage places for the ripening process until the freight situation eases up.

MARKET PAVILION AND COM- MUNITY HOUSE.

First steps have been taken to carry out the plan for a market pavilion and a community house in Janesville. With the cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce, the Farm Bureau and others as individuals interested in the city and its progress, the establishment of the stock sales pavilion seems to be in sight. Twice the county pavilion has either refused to give the matter support or have postponed action, but it may have been for a mistaken belief that the people of the city were not supporting the project with more than indifferent interest.

The plan for a building that will not only serve for a stock sales pavilion, but allow also for office room for farm organizations, for other civic and semi-official offices and contain also an auditorium to care for small but important conventions is along the lines advocated in the Gazette for many months and is a part of the platform carried at the head of these columns.

If the building can be used for an armory also, and the aid of the state secured, that will be another step toward insuring the construction of the pavilion. Janesville must continue the close and harmonious relations with the productive neighborhood at her doors, which have characterized the city and its people for nearly three-quarters of a century. Getting together on the community house and market place is of concrete value to all.

"THERE WILL BE NO IMMEDIATE STRIKE."

One of the heads of the several brotherhoods of railway trainmen meeting at Chicago has officially stated that there will be no strike of the railway employees precipitately, either called by unions or of the outlaw nature. The wage schedule of the rail labor board will be given careful consideration by the conference of the brotherhoods.

The consumer is to be given more or less thought on this question. It is no small thing that $600,000,000 should be taken from the shippers and the passenger service and piled on the consumer. The passenger is an ultimate consumer and the increase in freight rates will be paid by the retail purchaser eventually. The woman who is buying stockings for the children, the man who is investing in a new hat,—these people will pay the wage increase.

It is possible that a half cent mile addition will be made in passenger rates, and about a 30 per cent increase in freight charges will be necessary to meet the wage raise. The railroads will not be able to pay these increased wages from dividends or surplus for there are none, nor from operating receipts, for they are not large enough at present rates. A billion dollars will be needed to rehabilitate the lines and that must be found. Under government operation the difference would be made up by taxation and that would have the same effect, the consumer paying just as he will under the present condition of advancing freight and passenger rates.

We have been postponing this day of fate for several months. We are face to face with it.
When the wage schedule is adopted, if it is, let us hope we will add some efficiency and loyalty to the operation of the roads and that the conditions which have grown to be intolerable will be bettered for the shipper and the consignee. The morale of the American railroads, once the pride and marvel of the world, has sadly degenerated.
It is time we got back to the old efficiency. We will all agree on one point: that the increase was entirely justified, the men should be given the raise, and that it was criminal to delay action so long.

SEAMAN, THE GOVERNOR'S AFTERTHOUGHT.

"The selection of Dr. Seaman," naively states the Wisconsin State Journal, "was a last minute decision by Gov. E. L. Philipp." Later it says, "But the governor did not actually make up his mind until about noon Wednesday." And then, "Gov. Philipp's selection of Seaman was with one big object in view: Seaman's candidacy would knock the spots off the Wilcox boom."

It certainly must gratify Dr. Seaman, not only to be the candidate of the beer faction, but to be named as an afterthought of the governor. Then, again, the citizens of the state of Wisconsin, who are busy fishing, fighting mosquitoes, picking cherries and harvesting an immense hay crop, are ticked to death to be relieved of the burden of selecting a candidate which of course for consensual reasons they are entirely unqualified.

Janesville will be the host to all the people who have time or an inclination to take a day's outing next Wednesday, at a community picnic, given by the Chamber of Commerce. The chief attraction for most of the men especially, and it should also be to the women who have the new responsibility in the franchise, and must know something of public questions, will be the address of Hon. Irvine L. Lenroot, who makes his first visit to us since his election as senator.

Shamrock IV has two races to her credit. One more and the yachting trophy, kept by the superior sailing qualities of America, for 69 years, will go back to England. With that and her six votes in the league of nations, Great Britain may be said to have squared up to Geo. Washington.

That man who died and was going to send the combination of a safe, back from spirit land, must have mislaid it along with the messages to his wife.

The Occupational Vote

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Senator Harding, we learn, is sure of the chauffeur vote all over the country because he drives his own car with great skill, and because he is an honorary member of the Professional Chauffeurs' Association of the District of Columbia. It is understood that chauffeurs' clubs will be organized in all cities to support him.

This fact certainly ought to contain a suggestion for those gentlemen of political power who manage presidential campaigns. It is evident that the chauffeurs are not going to support Harding because of his record as an executive, nor yet because of the platform on which he stands, but primarily because of his record as a chauffeur.
It would seem that if a candidate could be found who had devoted himself to enough different occupations at one time and another, and if these occupational sympathies could be properly worked upon, he would sweep the country.

This tendency to play up facts about a candidate which have nothing to do with his fitness for the presidency, and which is noticeable in every presidential campaign, is evidence of a weakness in the democratic system of government which has been pointed out by every critic of it. This weakness is that the average man feels more strongly than he thinks, and is therefore apt to vote for the man who can most strongly arouse his sympathies, rather than the one who is logically fit to serve in office. The man who arouses his sympathies is the one who is most like him.
But this average man is not a genius, he is a mediocrity. Hence it is argued, the tendency is always to choose mediocrities for office and exclude really gifted men.

You can easily think of many facts in support of this idea. In a presidential campaign, or any other kind of political campaign, there is always a great effort on the part of each candidate's supporters to bring out all the homely facts about him, which make him seem similar to the average man. If he is fond of babies, or buttermilk or funny stories, if he shaves himself, or plays pinochle—any of these things, things are strongly in his favor, although having little or nothing to do with his capacity for running a nation. In this country it is almost necessary that he should be of humble origin, preferably on a farm, and that he should have had a poor education and a hard time in his youth. These early privations are at best of doubtful value in fitting him for the presidency, but they indicate that he is just like most of the rest of us. We are afraid of the superior man because he is different, argue the critics of democracy. We want to feel that the man in the White House is one of us, although obviously what we need there is someone, a good deal different from most of us.

A symptom of the same spirit is the tendency of the opposition to dig up all facts about the candidate which indicate that he differs from the conventional type of man. Especially if he can be shown to have done anything scandalous or unconventional in his relations with women, this can be used powerfully against him. It may be said that this is because we want a man for President who is a model of the domestic virtues. We are shocked and appalled to learn from the new science of psychoanalysis, however, that in reality our instinctive opposition to the unconventional man is due to envy. Most of us, they say, are consciously or subconsciously, somewhat chafed by the bonds of conventionality. We would really like to be free. We envy the man who is free.
And therefore we vote against him.

Here again, a man's personal or domestic life has little to do with his capacity as a statesman.
In fact, many greatly gifted men in all lines have not been patterns of domestic virtue, as anyone may learn by reading the biographies of those who have been dead long enough so that their biographers dare to be frank about them.

So the critics of democracy seem to make out a strong case to the effect that democracy is merely a method of choosing mediocrities for high office and keeping really great men out. But a little reflection shows that there is another side to the question. The average individual may fear and envy the superior man, but he also has a need for leadership which he feels very strongly. Hence his great capacity for hero-worship, which Carlyle points out. It is evident that once the superior man is gotten into the limelight and demonstrated conclusively that he has powers which the average man lacks, then the average man tends to follow him loyally and even blindly.
This tendency could be traced from primitive times, if there were space here. Thus the medicine men of shamans of all primitive tribes are superior men who have demonstrated their abilities and have obtained great power. But the witches and sorcerers, who are killed, are individuals of the same type who are overcome by envy and antagonism before they attain power.

It takes only a glance at history to see that many really great and superior men have attained leadership, and that people have followed them blindly. Christ, Mahomet, Caesar and Napoleon were great men, each of whom was a law unto himself. Each of them encountered envy and an-tagonism at first, but later rose to power.

The two recent conventions might be taken as a text. Before the republican convention the men who had interested the people were Hoover, Johnson, Wood and Lowden. The first two, especially, had made undoubted impressions, as shown by the primaries, without the aid of large campaign funds. Both of them were shelved by the leaders at the convention and a man chosen who had attracted no popular attention at all. Harding, of course, may be a second Lincoln. He is, indeed, a fine type of American. The only fact to be pointed out here is that he had not demonstrated the fact to the people. The convention thwarted the popular will instead of fulfilling it. In other words, it was his fellow leaders who distrusted the men of proven inspiration and personality, and not the people themselves. Somewhat the same thing was seen at the democratic convention, where McAdoo was undoubtedly the man most in the popular eye. Here again, the candidate chosen may be a great man, and there is much in his record to prove that he is, but the fact remains that he was not nationally known as a man of proven high ability.

The New York World calls attention to the demand made by the radical element constantly that the lawyer be shelved and the farmer or some other horny-handed son be nominated for the presidency. But when the Labor-Farmer party named its candidate it picked a practicing lawyer and defeated a farmer. Great are the ways of inconsistency.

JUST FOLKS

KNOWLEDGE.
There is much in life that I do not know And much that I may not understand, But my heart grows warm at a boy's hello And I'm glad to walk with him, hand in hand.
College? I missed it in bygone days, I haven't the right to a high school diploma.
But I learned a lot from childhood's ways That is very useful today to me.

I know the boy and I know his games, I know the things that he likes to do.
His favorite food and his favorite names And his favorite brand of mischief, too.

I cannot tell him of ancient Greeks, Or of Caesar's victories, date by date, But the sort of knowledge which now he seeks I can rattle off at a steady rate.

I can tell him the ways of the fox and bear, I can show him the places where pickerel swim.
In all that he likes I can have a share,
And I know enough to be pal with him.

PERSONAL PREJUDICES.
I think the best way to lose interest in a campaign speech is to read it in the papers next day.

I don't believe the weather bureau is wrong all the time. It isn't possible for anyone to be wrong all the time and it will happen.
I don't believe that a man who dyes his mustache ever feels anybody but himself.

I don't think a man is necessarily a noodle just because he happens to be a famous woman's husband.

I never buy cheap collars. I can't find any.
I don't know why Hoover jaded the republicans instead of the democrats and I don't givedam.

I am glad the telephone service fails so often.
It is the best alibi I have ever had.

I think Volstead is the greatest statesman in the country—but not in the city.

I don't think I am earning more money than I am getting. I thought so for many years but it didn't do any good. Of course, I make the usual mental reservations.

I hate bagpipe music worse than any other noise in this world.

Who's Who Today

ELIZABETH MARBURY.
Besides acting as representative of many authors and playwrights of America and Europe, Miss Elizabeth Marbury has found time herself to contribute to various magazines, to become successful as a theatrical producer, to win recognition as a war worker and to become an outstanding figure among women who are making themselves known in the field of politics. She is a native New Yorker and a democrat.
She attended the present convention of her party in San Francisco as a delegate-at-large from New York state. Miss Marbury was twice decorated by the French government. During the war she was an active worker in the Red Cross, and has all of the honors conferred on the women's national committee of the American defense society and chairman of the county committee of the League for Peace.

Despite some opposition by up-state women democrats to the selection of Miss Marbury as delegate to the national convention, she was elected to the chair in a Murphy delegate. ground, that she would be a Murphy delegate.
Miss Marbury went to San Francisco, as she said, with an open mind.

"How's the delegate-at-large?" asked a newspaper man who came up to her for lunching on picnic grounds in a San Francisco restaurant.
"The delegate-at-large," replied Miss Marbury, "is feeling like a making and is presently in the chair in the convention hall on solid ground. The platform is infinitely more important than the man."

Miss Marbury added that she didn't mind telling anyone that she favored the restoration of light wines and beer, and that she would trade her "job as delegate-at-large for $10,000."

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Colonel Seaman said Saturday night at Milwaukee that under no circumstances would he wage a campaign of personalities and that if Senator Wilcox should be nominated in the primaries he would support him.

As far as personalities are concerned, Philipp put them in. They are a part of Dr. Seaman's campaign. They are a part of the Wilcox campaign. The evidence being all to the effect that his candidacy was launched, under Philipp auspices, primarily for the purpose of defeating Wilcox because he was opposed to Philipp.
Had Col. Seaman come forward of his own volition. Whether asking the nomination as a reward for his services or in order that he might render further service, it is a different aspect. That he entered the field because the Philipp "conference" asked him to do so is about as slim a reason for political action as could well be imagined.—Knochen-Herald.

Speaking of the fall prices, we rather like that word fall.—Memphis News Scimitar.
J. M. Titterton doesn't believe in all the merits of "political peruna," any more than does Senator Wilcox. Talking at Chippewa Falls, the head of the Society of Equity, quietly remarks that "any person who solicits the support of the Non-partisan league in this state has earned and fully merits political oblivion."—Eau Claire Leader.

SHALL WE SUPPRESS TOBACCO?

There are rumors of a campaign to prohibit the sale and use of tobacco in the United States. Similar incredible rumors floated about country connected with prohibition years before the deed was done. The brewers, saloon-keepers and whiskey merchants defied suppression and obstinately, if not blindly, persisted in their evil ways; whereas, had they heard the warning and mended some of their methods and practices, the blow might have been withheld or at least materially softened. Tobacco merchants and tobacco users now ridicule the idea of suppressing this much abused drug should see the moral and conduct themselves with circumspection.
There are a great many users of tobacco, as there were many users of alcoholic beverages, who would join the side of prohibition, if necessary, in order to put a stop to unmitigated abuses.

When a boy or girl can obtain and use tobacco, that constitutes a damnable abuse of privilege for gain, and the crook who profits from such enterprise ought to be put out of business, for he is a menace to the second-hand fumigation on non-smokers anywhere should be suppressed as a public nuisance, just as a smoker who travels about impregnating the atmosphere with iodoforn.

The exploiter of tobacco for youngsters resorts to salacious pictures, the country's flag or uniform, or the misrepresentation of mental application or athletic prowess in order to seek the sale of tobacco, in order to market his goods, invites forcible suppression and hastens the coming of a more wholesome age. Now it may seem absurd to think of men growing surreptitious patches of tobacco out behind the garage or paying enormous prices for smugglers who bring a very inferior weed through the revenue cordon a few years hence. I make no prophecy, but I feel that badly prophetic, which I optimistically predicted for 1930. I merely warn smokers that they had better begin preparing themselves now. A smokeless Thursday each week, for

Q. What states have year round registration for automobiles?
A. L. I.

A. New York, Massachusetts, Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Wisconsin, and West Virginia compose the full list.

Q. What are sumptuary laws?
A. T. B.

A. This is the name given to laws to control private expenditures.
Laws of this kind were common in ancient legislation. Greece endeavored to inculcate simple living among her people by such restrictions, and early Rome had many such laws. In modern times many countries have attempted to regulate expensive living by such laws. This restrictive legislation which might be called a sumptuary law, is the prohibition amendment to the constitution.

Q. Please give me the names of the various wedding anniversaries.
A. B. S.

ton; third, leather; fifth, wooden; seventh, woolen; tenth, tin; twelfth, silk and linen; fifteenth, crystal; twenty, china; twenty-five, silver; thirtieth, jewelry; thirty-five, ivory; fortieth, ruby; fiftieth, golden; sev-

Q. Did America carry a good part of our army over seas? F. R. L.

A. The British ships, which carried almost half of our soldiers during the World war, were manned by British crews.

Q. What was the greatest volcanic eruption in the world? F. R. L.

A. The greatest volcanic disturbance within the period of human history was an eruption in one of the interior valleys of Savil, Samarra.
It was a brief resting period this activity, which began in August, 1905, lasted for four years, and the discharge of lava has been estimated at more than five cubic miles.

Q. What is the strongest animal living on land or sea? F. R. L.

A. It is impossible to name the strongest animal, since some of the smallest insects have a greater amount of strength in proportion to weight than some of the largest animals. For instance, an ant may carry a morsel 15 or 20 times its own weight, while an elephant could scarcely carry twice its weight.

Q. What is the status of a Sergeant Bugler in a cavalry Regiment?
W. S. V.

A. The War department states that he would have the status of a members of the headquarters troop of a cavalry regiment.

Q. What was the first river and harbor bill passed in congress? E. G.

A. While an appropriation of $30, 000 was made for the public works and one of $22,700 in 1822 for the construction of a harbor of refuge in Delaware Bay, the first approach to a river and harbor bill was made in 1821, when about $150,000 was appropriated for carrying on work in about 20 localities.

Q. How many "school centers" are there in the United States? S. A. C.

A. A "center," according to the standard applied in this connection, is a school which is used regularly at least one evening a week for two or more activities, or twice a week for one not counting night schools.
There are 667 such school centers in the United States, reported by 107 cities, and representing 10 states, the District of Columbia, and Alaska.

Q. What causes the sideslip of an airplane? C. H.

A. A sideslip, which is a sliding downward and upward while making a turn, is due to excessive banking.
A sideslip is often an intentional maneuver of pilots to test the strength of the structure.

Q. What are the principal towns in the State of New York? J. T. and towns in the oil section of Texas are Burkburnett, Electra, Wichita, McBreen, Breckenridge, Brownsville, Brownwood, Pecos, Toyah and Houston.

THE DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

THE FAMILY CELEBRATES.
Dear old dad opened a bottle of champagne in his honor last night at dinner when I told the good news. Everyone was most sweet and happy in my success. Even mother was carried away, despite the fact that art is the end of all true home life, to her way of thinking. Nanny suggested that we frame the wonderful check and hang it on the dining room wall. But that would be over-sentimental. The champagne was perfect, and we sat about the table and talked and talked after we had finished dinner. Of course I had to tell about having a studio of my own, and that caused a little in the galleries, for a minute, for mother looked so hurt that I kept this from her.

I explained to them, however, that I had been driven to do so by an overpowering creative spirit and urge, and by the knowledge that if I did not have absolute peace and quiet I could not be able to accomplish anything.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please give me the address of some one who can advise me concerning the movies? I am anxious to find out if a pretty girl with talent, but too poor to travel and find out for herself, can be a success.

BLUE EYES.
Get a movie magazine which will furnish you with the addresses of the different companies. Then write to those which appeal to you most and are nearest home, stating your ambitions and enclosing a picture of yourself and stamps to return the picture and a reply.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I work in the telephone office and make pretty good money. I would like to have some of it to spend, but my father takes it all every week. He does not need it, but he says he has a right to take it from all of his children. What do you think about it?

LUCY.
It is truly hard to have your earnings taken away from you, for it leaves you little incentive to work. Think you ought to come to an understanding with your father and tell him that you will not be extravagant with your money. Ask him to help you to plan a budget of your expenditures, allotting so much for your father's share and so much for your mother. The rest of your salary ought to be carefully divided among the following items: Clothing, food, entertainment, and so on. Do not forget the last item, for in these days of surprises it does not seem safe to have no nestegg to fall back on in case of emergency, and then, too, your father will be better satisfied if you promise to save a certain amount each week.

A good way to save is to go to the bank on the way home from the office after you have received your pay. If you put your money in the bank you are not so likely to spend it for unessentials.

I think that if you go over the matter with your father in this businesslike way you will find that he will be willing to let you handle your pay yourself. But you must make up your mind that when you have once gained his confidence you must keep your word and do what you have promised with your money.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you think I am too young to go to work? I am a boy 15 years old and I think that I ought to be earning my own living. I will be in the second year of high school next year and I do not want to waste time in school when I should be getting a start in the business world. My parents want me to finish high school.

I agree with your parents. Statistics show that the greater majority of successful men nowadays have the advantage of a college education. The competition is so keen that you will need all the preparation you can get to make you a success in the business world. You will never regret the time you spent on education. You will be apt to regret what you do not get.

PRESERVING PLUMS
Dried Plums—Select fruit which is ripe. Remove pits by cutting fruit open with a sharp knife. Arrange halves on trays in single layer with pit cavity uppermost.
Treat with sulphur fumes 20 to 25 minutes. When liquid collects in the pit cavity the plums are sulphured enough, and are ready to dry. Start drying at a temperature of 90 to 145 degrees F. When the surface begins to wrinkle increase slowly to 175 degrees F.
Plum Conserved—Two dozen plums, one-half cup cold water, one-fourth cup nut meats, one-half cup sugar, two oranges, one cup raisins.
Wash plums, stone and cut into pieces. Add seeded raisins, orange pulp and peel, cut the raisins into small pieces. Simmer until of marmalade consistency. Add nuts 10 minutes before removing from fire.

Plum Sweetmeat—Pit six pounds of plums (six pounds after pitting) and add same amount of sugar. Run through the meat chopper and add to plums, together with two pounds of seeded raisins and one pound of chopped nuts. Boil slowly until of the consistency of jelly and put in glasses. If plums are very tart lemon may be omitted and all oranges used; the nuts may also be omitted if wished.

MEATLESS DISHES
Corn Fudding—Scrape and scrape the corn from six medium ears and then place in a mixing bowl and add one onion grated, four tablespoons of finely minced parsley, one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of paprika, three eggs, one cup of milk. Beat to mix and then pour in well greased custard cups. Set the custard cups in a pan and add water to about one-half depth of the cups. Bake in a slow oven for 30 minutes. Take a knife and loosen from the edge and then turn out on a platter. Garnish with finely minced parsley and then serve with cream sauce.

Egg Plant—Cut the egg plant in half from stem to blossom end. Scoop out the water and then par-boil. Drain well. Now take the cheese and macaroni filling and add the cooked pulp of the egg plant. Fill back into the shell; round up well. Brush with beaten egg, and then cover with one bread crumb. Bake in a hot oven for 30 minutes and then baste each half of egg plant with two tablespoons of salad oil. Serve with cheese sauce.

Corn Oysters—Grate the corn from four large ears and then place in a bowl and add three-quarters cup of milk, one and one-half cups of flour, one teaspoon of salt, two teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of paprika, two teaspoons of grated onion, four tablespoons of finely minced parsley. Bake to mix and then fry like fritters.

Any Player Piano Will Play But the Question is

How Will It Play?

People are demanding more in a Player Piano than they ever did. They want a Player Piano that will enable them, easily and simply, to get good, natural-sounding music; music that sounds as if it were being played by hand.

To get all that, means to get a Player Piano that will give simple, natural expression to its music; and give it at command; simply and easily, in this respect the wonderful

M. Schulz Co. Player Piano

STANDS IN A CLASS BY ITSELF

The name SCHULZ on a Piano has stood for quality in the minds of music lovers for more than a score of years.

The name SCHULZ on a Player Piano means the same; means a Piano such as Schulz has always made—the best that can be made; and a player designed and constructed entirely in the Schulz factories, after Schulz ideas; an original player and a perfected player.

A Genuine Victrola for your Summer Vacation

Wherever you may go this summer a small Victrola can go with you.

The porch of the summer cottage, the lean-to of the shack in the wilderness, the spare seat of the car, the bow of the canoe—there is always room for it.

You will seldom be too busy or too tired to listen. The Victrola plays everything—the song of love and moonlight, the dazzling operatic aria, the swinging band march, the dainty string quartet, the Hawaiian orchestra, the intoxicating rhythms of the dance, the mighty strains of the symphony orchestra, the soft crooning of the solo violin.

All these are yours—and more.

Only the Victrola may bring you these things in their utmost perfection. Wherever you are, and whenever you wish it, they will be yours to enjoy.

Won't you come in and let us play some of the latest records for you and demonstrate the many special features of Pedal Touch is so easy—so different.

You can play a Gulbransen better than you could ever have played by hand.

The Gulbransen always gives such satisfactory service and is so reasonable in price.
